(Takes one shirt from the pile on the floor and looks at it.)

Star Wars, Revenge of the Sith. I remember that one. I remember waiting in line for the premiere, because we had to see the stupid thing just as soon as humanly possible. All those stupid Star Wars movies and those stupid Star Wars conventions. No more of that, thank God. That shithead can inflict all that Star Wars garbage on somebody else.

(Takes the scissors in one hand and threatens the shirt with them. Eventually flings the shirt across the room and glares at it. )

You're definitely going to the Salvation Army. He was such a freak for Star Wars. He even went to the conventions in costume. He even tried to get ME to go in costume.

(Puts the scissors down, picks up another shirt.)

What else do we have? "True Love Waits". Oh, yeah, the Canadian Christian Youth Conference. That was a great weekend; it was wonderful to see so many of my kids making a commitment to chastity. Hmmm, I think I'll keep it. The next conference is in a few weeks' time; I can wear it there.

(Folds it and places it beside her, starting a "wear" pile. Addresses audience.)

True Love Waits. Yeah, that's me. I'm into chastity and "True Love Waits" and "No, I won't sleep with you on the third date or even the twenty-third one". So what was I thinking, dating him? Well, he was a fellow Catholic; I thought that we had the same values. You would think that, wouldn't you? Two people, both Catholic. You'd think that they'd have the same values. Not the case. Not the case at all.

(Sighs. Picks up another shirt.)

The Red Dress Run. One of Shithead's many runs. Some of the guys went all out, red dresses, red hats, and red shoelaces. Not him. He wore a red t shirt. He just wasn't a red personality, I guess. (Starts "donate" pile on floor. Picks up a handful of shirts.)

Now where did all these black t shirts come from? Some of these are definitely going to charity. National Actuaries of Canada Conference. One of his. Black, with white print. What's this? A little red trim on the sleeves and neck? Three whole colours on a t shirt? Oh, you wild and crazy actuaries, you. Next thing you know, you guys will be crossing on the "Don't Walk" light – or even running with scissors.

(Throws the shirt contemptuously into the "donate" pile on the floor.

Considers next couple of shirts.)

The Luther Lions. Better keep that one, and show that I support our football team. I think that's an unwritten part of a teacher's contract, isn't it, supporting all the sports teams.

(Puts the shirt into the "wear" pile.)

The Luther Rovers. Oh, right, one of many fund raisers for the school choir. That's also part of a teacher's contract, supporting all the fund raising activities. They'll be doing the t shirt sale again soon, so I'll have a replacement for you. I think I can let you go.

(Places shirt in the "donate" pile. Picks up another shirt.)

Regina Folk Festival. I remember this one. Sure, that was the year the Funky Penguins appeared. They were one wild group. Even Shithead couldn't sit still when they were on the stage. I always liked the shirt. It can go into the quilt.

(Folds it neatly and starts a "quilt" pile. Picks up another shirt.)
